The National Commission for Women, a statutory body established for promoting women empowerment and ensuring women safety, has partnered with the Cyber Peace Foundation and Facebook for launching 'Digital Shakti' campaign.

Digital Shakti campaign recognizes the growing importance and emerging threats on digital platforms. It has three broad objectives i.e. promoting digital literacy for women; raising awareness about cyber crimes; and advisory about the recourses available to women to prevent and redress such crimes.

The campaign was launched on 18 June, 2018 at Panjab University, Chandigarh in the presence of Hon'ble Governor of Haryana, Prof. Kaptan Singh Solanki.

The National Commission for Women is now proposing that various universities in the State of Haryana participate in this campaign by organizing a session on 'Cyber Security' for women students.

May I request you to please direct the universities/colleges in the state of Haryana to accept the invitation from the National Commission for Women.

Regards,

Yours Sincerely
